MODERN POWDER COAT PLANT
Auckland

Modern Powder Coat Plant. Options for Continuation or Relocation

The modern plant is less than 10 years old and is currently operating in Auckland as a division of a larger company.

If the plant continues in its current location the current vendors have close to $500,000 of ongoing work to sub out to the new owners and approximately the same revenue from external customers.

There is also flexibility around relocating the plant and not taking on the existing lease commitments; it would likely be more cost effective to relocate to smaller premises.

The modern aluminium plant produces an excellent product, with an extremely low defect rate.

There is a well-trained team in place including the team leader with 20 years' experience.

The plant uses a combination of Chinese technology and Swiss Gema technology and is capable of 6.8m lengths, 1.8m height & 750mm of depth. The oven is 30m long, in addition included is the chemical bath, main and secondary spray booths, and drying oven capacity.

There is significant information available to serious buyers. The plant is available for inspection during office hours.

Business Highlights
